TO THE

HONOURABLE AND RIGHT REVEREND

HENRY,

LORD BISHOP OF GLOUCESTER.

My Lord,

I feel myself highly honoured by the permission to present the following Dictionary to the Public under the sanction of your Lordship's name.

Your Lordship's character as a Christian Prelate, for which I entertain the highest respect, needs not my commendation. But I cannot omit the present opportunity of publicly expressing my sincere gratitude for the zealous concern your Lordship has discovered for the welfare of my Jewish brethren, and for the success of the Society whose object is their conversion to the Christian Faith.

I am,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's much obliged,

and most obedient Servant,

PREFACE.

IT would be easy to expatiate on the excellence of Hebrew learning, and the various advantages with which it is attended; but that is not the design of this preface. The increased and increasing cultivation of it by persons of all classes, indicates a general and growing sense of its utility, and supersedes the necessity of vindication or encomium.

Almost ever since the author has enjoyed the happiness of being a member of the Christian Church, and particularly since he has had the privilege of living in this highly favoured land; he has felt an ardent desire to call the attention of his fellow christians to this important study, and to assist them in the pursuit of it. With this view, he, more than two years ago, published a Grammar; which has obtained considerable approbation from some of the first Hebrew scholars,* and has been

* "After an attentive perusal of Mr. Frey's Grammar, and after comparing it with others, I have to remark—that, in general, it equals the best Hebrew Grammars that have appeared—that his plan is altogether of a different nature, and highly superior—that in his attempts to procure an accurate pronunciation of the Hebrew language, he excels all his predecessors—that his view of the Particles is a most superior and elaborate article—that, in fine, the Grammar possesses a rank high in Oriental Literature."—Extract of a Letter from the Rev. James Kidd, Professor of Oriental Languages in the Marischal College and University of Aberdeen, to a friend in London.

" His examples of nouns adjective, according to their variations in number and regimen, page 32 to 36, are a valuable addition; and the view of the pronouns is improved, page 39 to 44, particularly by adding the prefix ב, which occurs as often as any other form. He has also given a fuller Table of the Particles than any other grammarian, p. 85—92." Bap. Mag. 1813.

" One of Mr. Frey's objects in the composition of his Grammar, has been to render it simple, and yet comprehensive. The tables of accents and particles are very complete; and the reading lessons in Exercise IX. will shew how differently Hebrew is read by Jewish and by Christian scholars. The directions for the formation of Verbs through all their voices, moods, and tenses, are minutely given; and this part of the Grammar manifests the author's critical acquaintance with the language which he professes to teach. In short, we must remark that Mr. Frey's mode of teaching the Hebrew is very masterly; that it is singularly calculated to facilitate the student's intimate knowledge of that language; and that it makes us acquainted with the process adopted by the Rabbis in the education of Jewish youth."

Monthly Review, Sep. 1815.

" It is but just, indeed, to state, that some Grammars have been composed in English; but the number of these is small, and even these few are not free from considerable defects. The Grammar of Parkhurst is without points; and without the true vowels, all Hebrew becomes confusion: that by Newton labours under the same disadvantage: and Lyon's Hebrew Grammar, although it teaches the system of the points, is too short to lead to a perfect knowledge of the language.——From all these defects, that before us is completely free: Mr. FREY has given all the necessary rules, according to the best authorities; he has illustrated his rules with copious and apposite examples: he has given complete Tables of the Hebrew Particles: and at the end he has printed the whole Book of Psalms, from the excellent edition of the Hebrew Bible by Vander Hooght.——Upon the whole, therefore, we cannot but recommend this Grammar to general notice. It will be Agreeably to the intention expressed in the preface to his Grammar, he now ventures to bring forward a Dictionary: for, notwithstanding the many Hebrew Lexicons and Dictionaries which have been already published, he has long been of opinion, that one was yet wanted for the use of students of that language.

Some Hebrew Lexicons contain only the Roots, with a few of the Derivatives; and in those which exhibit most or all of the derivative words, these are ranged under their respective Roots: so that persons who are not well acquainted with the rules for separating the Serviles from the Roots, are often at a loss where to find the word they want. The author feels no small satisfaction in being able to corroborate his opinion, of the impediment which this plan throws in the way of young students, by the authority of one of the first Hebraists of the last century. Dr. James Robertson, Professor of Oriental languages in the University of Edinburgh, in the preface to his Clavis Pentateuchi, has the following observation:* "It is well known to all who have the

found a complete introduction to the study of Hebrew; and the Lexicon to be published by the same author, will, if executed with the same ability, materially assist in the cultivation of Hebrew Literature. We hope, therefore, that Mr. F. will meet with encouragement in his endeavours to explain it. Of the price of this Work no one will complain, when the difficulty and expence of printing Hebrew are considered: it is within the reach of all; and the addition of the Psalms will render it peculiarly useful in schools.

* Notum est omnibus qui linguarum orientalium non plane prorsus ignari sunt, maximam difficultatem esse, etiam studiosis grammaticæ præceptis mediocriter imbutis, in radice investigandâ; ea enim est indoles non tantum Hebraicæ, sed etiam Chaldaicæ, Syriacæ, et Arabicæ, ut non tantum pronoleast acquaintance with the oriental tongues, that the principal difficulty they present, even to students tolerably familiar with their grammatical rules, lies in the investigation of the Roots: for it is the genius of the Hebrew, as well as of the Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic, to unite possessive pronouns, and also inseparable particles, both with nouns and verbs; which proves a source of extreme perplexity to young scholars in those languages."

The learned professor complains,* as the result of his own experience in teaching, that in consequence of this difficulty, the progress of students in Hebrew was not at all proportioned to the labour employed, either by the tutor or the pupils. If there was cause for so serious a complaint, notwithstanding all the advantages enjoyed under such a tutor, it can excite no surprise, that many persons, not possessed of such advantages, have found the difficulty too great for their efforts to surmount, and have therefore abandoned the study in despair. The present Dictionary entirely removes this difficulty, by exhibiting the Roots and Derivatives all arranged under one alphabet; so that a person who is merely acquainted with the letters, may turn at once to any word used in the Old Testament.

The remark which has just been made, on the common method of placing the Derivatives under their respective Roots, is applicable to every Hebrew Lexicon or Dictionary the author has seen, except one, which he obtained from a friend, after his work was ready for press, and the prospectus was already before the public: Lexicon Hebraico-Chaldaico-Latino-Biblicum, Auctore P Carmelita, &c. Sub auspiciis Dom. Passionei, Cardinalis, 2 Tom. Avenione, 1765. The plan of this Lexicon, he had the pleasure of finding in many respects similar to his own; and he has not been backward to avail himself of all the assistance he could derive from it. It is a work of great merit, but being in Hebrew and Latin only, its use is consequently confined to those who have previously acquired a knowledge of Latin. The present Dictionary is adapted for all who understand either Latin or English.

Another difficulty, of less magnitude indeed than the former, but too considerable to be disregarded, arises from the proper names; which having no typographical mark of distinction, the young student often supposes them to be common Derivatives, and thus loses much time and labour in endeavouring to discover their Roots. The present work contains all the proper names found in the Old Testament, inserted in alphabetical order among the Derivatives. The Latin column gives the names, in most instances, as they have been written by the best authors in that language. The names in the English column are copied, without variation, from the authorised version.

Some Dictionaries contain so much superfluous criticism, that, in seeking for the meaning of a word, the student is frequently bewildered in a maze of extraneous matter: in this work, the significations are given in the most plain and concise manner, according to the best authorities. The author has no idea of superseding or depreciating the more elaborate productions of profound philologists for the use of the advanced Hebraist. He hopes it will be remembered that his design is to assist students in learning the language, and to facilitate the perusal of the Hebrew scriptures by persons who have made only a moderate proficiency, or who have received little or no instruction from a living tutor. With these humble pretensions, he conceived it would be unnecessary to accompany the various interpretations with particular references to the authorities by which they are supported. In cases where all respectable authorities are agreed, the insertion of their names would be ostentatious and useless: and in cases of real difficulty as to the true meaning, this Dictionary will be found to contain the different senses in which such words have been understood by the most eminent lexicographers and critics.

The Lexicons and Concordances which have been chiefly followed, beside that already mentioned, are those of Buxtorf, Robertson, and Taylor. Assistance has also been obtained from the Lexicons of Avenarius, Cocceius, Castell, and Pagninus; from the Concordance of Marius de Calasio, and from the Lyra Prophetica of Bythner. The interpretations of the Septuagint, or the Vulgate, have sometimes been preferred to those of succeeding writers. The work has been much indebted to the many valuable criticisms accumulated in Pool's Synopsis. Considerable aid has been derived from the ingenious and judicious labours of Albert Schultens and James Robertson. And in numerous instances, advantage has been taken of all the information furnished by historians, geographers, travellers, or any other writers, Jewish or christian, ancient or modern.

In the preface to his Grammar, the author proposed, after the example of several eminent lexicographers, to introduce into this work the pronunciation of every Hebrew word in Roman characters; but this was considered by many Hebraists, as rendered unnecessary by the ample directions and examples which he has given in his Grammar.* The omission of this part of his original plan has enabled him to devote a column to the signification in Latin, which he has no doubt will be regarded as a valuable addition, especially by Hebrew Students on the Continent.

* The author apprehends there can be no impropriety in embracing the present occasion to correct a mistake in his Grammar, page 45. Having stated, in the chapter on verbs, that the Hebrew Language has but one conjugation, he proceeds, in a note, to assign "the reason why he differs from all the eminent grammarians that have gone before him, who numerate seven distinct conjugations." It will appear, from the following quotation, that, however unconsciously, he was then treading in the steps of some of the most eminent grammarians of modern times. Uti clarissimus Danzius et doctissimus Schultensius, Hebræos unam tantum conjugationem habuisse, jure contendunt, ob hanc perspicuam rationem, quod omnes verborum diversæ species seu modificationes, quæ vulgo æstimantur totidem diversæ conjugationes, quod ad terminationem et syllabam finalem, reverà eodem modo conjugantur: Nos itaque in hâcce Clavi, &c. Robertson, Ibid. p. 7.

It will be universally admitted by the learned, that after a person has acquired a little knowledge of any language, no method is better adapted to perfect his acquaintance with it, than composing exercises or translating into it from his own or any other tongue. To enable the Hebrew student to avail himself of this mode of improvement, the author has, with much labour and care, compiled the latter part of this work, which contains the principal words in the Latin and English languages, with those words which correspond to them in Hebrew. With regard to the nouns and verbs, in this part, he has thought it sufficient to give the former in their simple forms, and merely the roots of the latter; and the whole without vowels: as before any successful attempts at composition can be made, the student must be well acquainted with all the inflexions of the verbs and the use of the various prefixes and suffixes; and by a reference to the first part, he will always be enabled to determine the accuracy or inaccuracy of his exercises in these respects, as well as to affix the proper vowels to any word he may want to employ. In these Vocabularies, the author has not used the roots of Latin or English verbs, but those tenses by which the Hebrew roots are generally translated.

The early sheets of this Dictionary, having been for many months in the hands of the public, the author has had opportunities of hearing different opinions respecting the plan he has adopted; and it affords him great satisfaction to find the balance of opinions decidedly in its favour.*

* From the REV. THOMAS FRY, A. M. Rector of Emberton, and Chaplain to the Right Hon. Lord Erskine; and Mr. D'ALLEMAND, Teacher of Hebrew, Chaldee, &c. &c.

"We have examined the specimen sent to us of your Hebrew Dictionary. There can be no doubt but that those who have little time, and no assistance from any Hebrew teacher, are greatly perplexed and retarded by the difficulty of finding the roots. The plan of your Dictionary will certainly remove this difficulty, and we therefore are happy to recommend it to the public patronage."

From the REV. W. B. COLLYER, D. D. F. A. S. &c.

"I have seen with the greatest satisfaction, and beg leave cordially to recommend your Hebrew, Latin, and English Dictionary, on a new and improved plan, which appears to me calculated for distinguished usefulness, particularly to facilitate the study of the sacred language."

From the REV. J. GILBERT, Classical Tutor at Rotherham Academy.

"You will accept my best acknowledgments for the numbers of your new work, and in complying with your request to look it over, and state my sentiments, I am happy to say, that your Dictionary appears to me to furnish what was before an important desideratum. The Student will be now in possession of the same facilities toward the attainment of Hebrew, with which SCHREVELIUS had before supplied him towards the acquisition of Greek; and though some may object to your work, as they have before to his, that it is too indulgent to indolence, yet the learner, and especially if he have not the assistance of a Tutor, will feel you to be entitled to his best thanks. Your labour will greatly lessen his; will save him much valuable time; and will, perhaps, in many instances, prevent him from relinquishing, in despair or disgust, a pursuit which he may now prosecute with ease and success. Besides the Derivatives, the addition of proper names is no unimportant advantage. On the whole the plan is calculated to be highly useful to those for whom it is designed, and it is so far executed with ability."

From the Rev. William Steadman, Tutor of the Academy at Bradford, Yorkshire.

"My Dear Sir,

I cannot but think that all the lovers of sacred literature must feel greatly indebted to you for the assistance you have rendered the English Student in the cultivation of the Hebrew tongue. Your edition of Van der Hooght furnishes a very seasonable supply of Hebrew Bibles, and does honour to the English press.—Your Hebrew Grammar is one of the most valuable I have met with. Had such an one fallen into my hands when I first began to study the Hebrew language, I should have made a much more speedy progress, and, in particular, should have acquired a far greater correctness in its pronunciation.—But your Dictionary I consider as a work of still greater importance, especially to such as apply themselves to the acquisition of the language without the assistance of a skilful tutor. To them, the finding of the roots, after all the direction the plainest grammar rules can give, remains an insuperable difficulty. That difficulty your Dictionary completely removes. I have wondered that nothing of the kind has been before undertaken; and felt greatly the want of such help myself, being destitute of a tutor in my application to the language: and I congratulate you on being the instrument in the hand of providence, of making the path to the acquisition of the language, in which the oracles of God were first delivered to mankind, so much more smooth and pleasant. Wishing you much success in all your endeavours for promoting the cause of learning and of christianity, both among gentiles and your own countrymen,

I remain, &c. &c."

From the Rev. W. Ballentine, Master of the South Crescent Academy, Bedford Square.

"It was with peculiar pleasure that I heard of your intention to publish a Hebrew Dictionary on the plan which you have adopted. And now that some of the parts lie before me, I assure you I am not disappointed. Your plan, which is to give every word found in the Old Testament in its Alphabetical order, together with its Root, is most excellent, and must, when completed, be an invaluable work to the young student. The same plan, pursued in some of the most approved Greek Lexicons, has, undoubtedly, tended to facilitate the acquisition of the Greek. May your work be no less generally useful in the study of the Hebrew scriptures. The execution, as well as its plan, is certainly calculated to give it general circulation."

" With great pleasure we notice the first part of another Hebrew Lexicon in English and Latin, by Mr. FREY. He proposes to arrange all the Roots and Derivatives under one Alphabet, so that any word in the Hebrew Bible may be found at once, without difficulty. In other Dictionaries, the Derivatives are to be found under their Roots only. When a learner, therefore, meets with a word he does not know, he must first ascertain the Root before he can find it. To a young student this is always a serious difficulty, often an insuperable one; and even to a veteran in the school, sometimes presents a wide scope for investigation and research. In Mr. FREY's plan he finds relief in a moment. This is the first and distinguishing excellence of the work. It contains further a complete catalogue of proper names. In the course of his reading, the young student meets with proper names which he does not know to be such, and in investigating the supposed or real Roots of which he spends much time and labour to little purpose. The catalogue here alphabetically arranged prevents this trouble. Each page of the Dictionary is divided into four columns. In the second, stand the Derivatives alphabetically arranged: in the first, the Roots, from which the Derivatives spring. In the same column are found the Roots, placed alphabetically, and with their meaning annexed. The third column contains a Latin, and the fourth, an English version. Such are the outlines of the plan pursued in this Dictionary. The typography is beautiful, and is much set off by the whiteness of the paper. It is a work of immense labour, and has not its merits affected by small spots and slight blemishes. May it go on and prosper."

Bap. Mag. Oct. 1814.

" This is a work intended for learners, who always, at first, find great difficulty in determining on the roots of Hebrew words, and are puzzled, hour encourage indolence in the student. To this he will reply with Dr. James Robertson, who replies to a similar objection against his Clavis Pentateuchi,* that the object of his labour has been to render the study of this language more and more easy, and that if it were in his power to make it ten times easier still, he would certainly do it.†

after hour, in searching after them. It is less a Dictionary, than a companion to the Dictionary; or rather, a preparative for the use of the Dictionary; and it follows the author's Grammar of the language with advantage.——It will certainly contribute to save the student's time, and thereby enable him to advance further in his general studies, if such be his disposition. His labour is shortened by this assistant; but, labour he must still expect to exert: if he will not dig in the mine, he shall find no gem to reward him.——Only those who have earnestly examined the subject, can conceive the labour of such a work, and the extensive stores of knowledge it requires. We must therefore pardon a few inaccuracies into which Mr. Frey has been betrayed by his learned guides.——The addition of the Latin renderings is judicious; it contributes essential assistance to the scholar; while it also promotes accuracy and correctness. We are glad to see that this gentleman's perseverance in the best of causes meets with support from the public, sufficient to induce him to continue his labours for the benefit of the religious world, as well as for his own nation in particular." Literary Panorama, Nov. 1814.

* Fatemur enim nos totos esse in hoc, ut studium hujus linguæ magis magisque facile redderemus, immo, si possemus, decuplo facilius reddere, nos non omissuros. Ibid. p. 2.

† As the excellent work just mentioned, and the Grammar, to which it constantly refers, are both in Latin, and can therefore afford no assistance to most Hebrew students in the present age, and as this remark is applicable to Bythner's Lyra Prophetica, and to most other useful works in this department of literature, the author has prepared and will shortly publish,—Rudiments

Others have objected that the author has not done enough; for, that with every derivative, he ought to have indicated the part of speech to which it belongs, and all the particulars necessary to a grammatical praxis. But to do this in a work containing every word in the Bible, perhaps, would have justly exposed him to the charge of encouraging idleness in the student, by leaving little or nothing for application to perform.

These objections cannot both be well founded; and the author is unable to discover any real foundation for either. They seem calculated to neutralize each other, and go far towards inducing him to hope that, with all the faults of his work, (and what human work is faultless?) he is at no very great distance from the proper medium between doing too much and doing too little.

For the use of the vowel points, the author thinks it unnecessary to offer either apology or defence. To persons who hold a different opinion, or entertain any doubts on the subject, he would recommend an attentive perusal of the following treatises: A Dissertation on the Hebrew Vowel Points, shewing that they are an original and essential part of the Language, by P. WHITFIELD, Liverpool, 1748. A Dissertation concerning the Antiquity of the Hebrew Language, Letters, Vowel Points, and Accents, by JOHN GILL, D.D. London, of the Hebrew Language, with Rules, Examples and Exercises, for translating from English into Hebrew, as well as from Hebrew into English; together with a KEY to the Book of Psalms, containing the true Pronunciation, different Significations, and Grammatical Analysis of every word.

1767; and since reprinted among the doctor's sermons and tracts. Dissertatio de Genuina Punctorum Vocalium Antiquitate, &c. præmissa Clavi Pentateuchi, Auctore JACOBO ROBERTSON, S.T.D. LING. ORIENTAL. PROFESS. &c. Edinburgh, 1770. To the statements and arguments of these able and learned writers, nothing has yet been opposed that wears the appearance of plausibility. But till they shall have received a satisfactory answer, the system they maintain may justly be considered as having full possession of the field.

The author cannot conclude this preface without expressing those acknowledgments, which are so justly due, for the assistance and encouragement afforded him in his literary undertakings.

The labour, care, and patience, requisite in correcting and revising for the press Hebrew works, especially with points and accents, none can conceive but those who have actually been engaged in it. Yet having been blessed with a long continuance of uninterrupted health, and having been careful to redeem every moment of time, the Author has been enabled in the course of the last six years, notwithstanding numerous other and still more important engagements, to publish three editions of his Narrative;* his Hebrew Grammar; a new edition

* In the last Edition, Price, with the Portrait, 3s. without it, 2s. 6d. the Author has given an account of—his birth and education—his religious offices sustained amongst the Jews—the time and place of his embracing the Christian religion—some remarkable circumstances which led him to a further acquaintance with divine Truth—his entrance into the Missionary Seminary at Berlin—his design in coming to England—and his labours and success amongst his brethren the Jews; and has added—An Address to Christians, in which he has laid open the deplorable state of the Jews—enumerated the chief difficulties in the way of their conversion—enforced the obligations of Christians to promote this object—and directed to the means by which it may be assisted.——We are glad to see this interesting Narrative reprinted. The concluding chapter, added to this Edition, is especially worth the attention of Christians of all Denominations. The deplorable moral state of the Jews is little known; here we have it detailed by one of their own nation; and the contemplation of it cannot but excite in every bosom a very earnest desire that the veil may be rent from their eyes, that they may behold the repairer of the breach, the restorer of paths to dwell in." Bapt. Mag. 1813.

* "With a view to accommodate the students of Hebrew, the Rev. Mr. Frey, the resident Preacher at the Chapel for the conversion of the Jews, has undertaken to edite a Hebrew Bible from the original of Van der Hooght, which has always been considered as one of the most correct: fewer errors we believe, are to be found in it than in any other: a copy of it is rarely to be met with. Therefore a fac-simile of this most valuable Bible will be a great acquisition to Hebrew Scholars, because they will not only be supplied at a less expense but they will have no difficulty in being supplied.—The first three Numbers are printed on fine Paper superior to any thing we have seen of the kind, and the letter is as beautiful as the original.—Those who have seen the original Bible of Van der Hooght, which now sells for six Guineas, and are well acquainted with Hebrew, know the great difficulty which necessarily must attend printing with the vowel points, but when it is recollected that the accents also are to be added, the trouble and difficulty are greatly increased. Nothing so complete as this has ever been produced in England, it will do honour to the enterprizing spirit of the country.—— We are sorry that Mr. Frey did not determine on taking off a larger quantity: the number is comparatively small and may not exceed the number of his Subscribers.—Hebrew Bibles have long been wanted; few are to be procured unless they are sent from the Continent: it is also proper to observe, that Bibles without vowel points cannot be of much use to the Hebrew obligations, in the first place to offer up his unfeigned thanksgivings to Almighty God, "the Father of lights, from whom cometh every good and perfect gift." It is well known that the expense of printing in foreign or dead languages is very great. From some peculiar circumstances the expenses of the above publications have far exceeded the Author's original estimate, and he would most probably have been prevented from critic, nor even in many instances can the accents be dispensed with, as a true translation of many passages cannot be had without them; which we hope to have an opportunity of proving in this Journal.—Both these, however, will be given in these elegant volumes."

Classical Journal, March, 1812.

"The work before us is intended to be an exact copy of Vander Hooght's celebrated edition. The type is at least equal in strength and distinctness to the Dutch edition, and the paper of the common copies is decidedly superior; the large paper copies are beautiful. Mr. Frey has wisely engaged Jewish compositors, who, from their childhood, were trained up to a familiarity with the punctuated and accentuated Hebrew. He himself carefully revises every word and mark, by the Bible of Salomon Proops, which the Jews consider the most accurate ever published; and he has engaged an accomplished Hebraist on the Masoretic plan, to assist him in the vast toil of correcting. By these means he has detected an unexpected number of errors in Vander Hooght's original edition." Eclectic Review, October, 1811.

"Every friend of Biblical knowledge, and especially the lovers of Hebrew Literature, will be gratified by the publication of the Hebrew Scriptures from the hands of a gentleman, whose ability cannot be doubted, and for whose integrity the Public (Jewish and Christian) possess no common guarantee. These, united to his well-known indefatigable industry, insure an attention to the work he is engaged in, rarely to be expected."

completing them, had not the public acceptance of them also exceeded his expectations.

Of a large edition of his Hebrew Grammar a few only are left on hand. There was a considerable demand for his Hebrew Bible in the course of its publication in Parts, and the demand has been still greater since it has been completed. As a Part only of a Dictionary can be but of little use, the Author did not expect many copies of this work to be sold before the whole should be finished; he has however the gratification to state that the sale has greatly increased with the publication of each successive part; and now it is completed, he trusts it will meet with the general approbation of the Public. For these encouragements, as well as for the kind reception the Author has met with amongst Christians of all denominations while travelling more than thrice all over the United Kingdom to preach the everlasting gospel and to solicit contributions in aid of that cause which lieth nearest his heart, namely, the melioration of the temporal condition, and the promotion of the spiritual welfare, of his Jewish brethren, he finds himself utterly at a loss for words to express his feelings of thankfulness, and he will ever esteem it his duty to devote his time and talents to the service of the public.

As the acceptance of a work by the public often depends on the character it receives from respectable Critics, the Author feels himself much indebted to the Gentlemen connected with several of the literary journals, for their early and candid reviews of his different publications; and he indulges the hope that those who have not yet noticed his Dictionary will find it not altogether unworthy of their recommendation. The Author requests those Gentlemen who have so handsomely favoured him with testimonies in approbation of his works to accept this public tribute of thanks for their kindness.

It only remains, to subjoin a few particulars in explanation of the method pursued in the following work.

Every Derivative is inserted with all its prefixes and affixes, and its Root in the parallel column, as, from אֵאָמִין | אמן.

If the word wanted be a Root, it must be sought in the alphabetical order of the Derivatives, and it will be found in the column of Roots; as, the root אָבַד page 1, stands in the column of Roots, next after the word אֲבַנְתָּא in the column of Derivatives.

Where any Derivative is from the same Root as the word immediately preceding it, the Root is not repeated, but its place is supplied by a line, as, page 2,

אבד	אִבְדָה
—	אֲבַדָה

There are many Hebrew Roots which are out of use, and the signification of which is uncertain; but they are retained in all Dictionaries on account of the words derived from them: such Roots are here printed in open letters, as אבב.

With a view to bring the work within as moderate limits as possible, the Author has frequently put into one line two words which are similar in sense, but which differ, either in the points, as אִבְדָה אָבְדָה; or in the gender, as אָבַדְתְּ אֲבַדְתְּ; or in one of the letters, as אוֹצָרוֹת אוֹצָרֹת, אֲבוֹשׁ אֲבוֹשָׁה: and such words are, in many instances, abbreviated, either in the beginning, as אֲבִינָיִל־נַל; or at the end, as בְּנוֹיִם בְּנוֹ־; or in both, as וְהוֹתִירְךָ־תְּךָ. Hence, if the Student seeks for a word which has וֹ, or ָ, or ֶ, in the middle, and does not find it in its regular place let him seek for it without that letter, or vice versa, as אַבְשָׁלוֹם־לֹם; וַיִּשְׁגּוּ־שְׁגּוּ; בְּמִלְאֹתָם־לְוּ.

Proper Names, and words composed only of a preposition and an affix pronoun, as בִּי in me, have no root opposite.

Where there is a marginal reading different from the text, such difference is denoted by an open letter, as בַּבַּיִס.

May the blessing of God Almighty accompany this work, and make it the means of communicating a clearer knowledge of the Sacred Scriptures, and thereby exciting to a more useful and holy life, and to him shall be all the praise and glory. Amen.
